HONGKONG, 24th June, 1901

It requires no special penetration to see at the present time that Germany is taking her new position in the world very seriously. Whether we read the home or the colonial Press of Germany or listen to the speeches of the Kaiser himself, the burden is invariably the inevitable rise of Germany in the scale of nations. The Emperor WILLIAM declared at Hamburg last week that the future of the country lay upon the waters. Among all who have read the brief report of his speech, residents in the Far East are the least likely to doubt his foresight. Within the past two years we have seen more and more shipping pass under the German flag. Like Mr. PREPONT MORGAN the Germans know the advantage of taking over old established business rather than creating new in opposition to that already existing. By the simple process of paying money down, Germany has lately transformed a modest trade in South-Eastern Asia into a most valuable commercial asset. In her possession on the Shantung coast she has established herself firmly in North China. The Yangtze region remains. In the old days (as we may call them now, so remote do they seem) British politicians and writers could talk lightly of the "sphere of influence" secured for their country in the valley of the Yangtze, and they could do so without challenge from Continental critics. Then Germany and Russia had not gained their foothold in China. Now they have, and with the bulk of Europe behind them they can turn attention to Mid-China. They have lost no time in so doing. The German Press in Europe and in the Far East has taken up the cause as a labour of love. We gave last week the gist of an article in our German contemporary in Shanghai, Der Ostasiatische Lloyd, in which the situation on the Yangtze, from a German point of view, was fully discussed. Coming as it did just after Admiral Seymour's warning utterances at the China Association dinner on the 10th instant, the purport of the article is not likely to be missed. "The Ostasiatische Lloyd writer tells us that the change in the situation is due to the increased respect of the Powers (and, in particular, of England) for Germany. He thinks that the energetic action of the German troops in Chihli has had an effect—a statement which it is permissible to doubt, for it cannot be made out that Germany did more than other nations, and in some respects her arrangements broke down badly. But it cannot be doubted that the rise of German commerce and sea-power together have very powerfully affected the position of affairs in China. With regard to the Yangtze valley, however, in spite of the fact that our "sphere of influence" used to be glibly talked about, there was never any desire among level-headed statesmen and writers to see this region annexed to the British Empire. It was indeed claimed that if such a catastrophe as the dismemberment of China were to take place, no other Power could be allowed to take over the Yangtze Valley, but all the time such dismemberment was strongly condemned. Now the Powers generally, whether all in sincerity or not cannot be said, have pledged themselves against a partition of China, and there is no longer any question of any one annexing the Yangtze region. The German bluster on the point therefore appears to us merely superfluous. "Germany has gained here now equal rights, which are publicly acknowledged," says the Ostasiatische Lloyd. So too have Japan, the United States, any European Power, and they are all equally entitled to assert it if they choose. Equal rights for all commerce is what Great Britain has always insisted on for the Yangtze, as also, with varying success, in the rest of China. It is perhaps the consciousness of Germany's monopoly in the exploitation of Shantung which makes our Shanghai contemporary so uneasy. The German garrison at Shanghai is now pointed to as the guardian of the "Open Door" on the Yangtze, and its maintenance is "a sign of particular political shrewdness on the part of the German Government." The "Open Door" seems to be of the kind which requires four policemen sitting on the doorstep to keep it open. At any rate our northern neighbour is to enjoy for some indefinite time more the doubtful privilege of four foreign garrisons—from Germany, Great Britain, France, and Japan. We do not feel confident that the residents will cordially accept the prospect.

Mr. A. P. Marty is temporarily in charge of the Spanish Consulate at Hongkong.

Dysentery seems very prevalent in the colony this summer, and there are numerous cases of enforced sick-leaves for employees of prominent firms here.

By a regulation made by the Governor in Council on the 17th inst., the number of junks to be licensed was increased from 1,000 to 1,200.

The Rev. G. J. Williams, Union Church, who has been on a six weeks' holiday in Japan, returns to Hongkong in the course of the next few days, and will occupy his pulpit next Sunday.

Mr. G. T. How, manager of the Penang Branch of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, having been seriously unwell for some time past, has been ordered home, and is to leave Penang by the next German Mail.

Among the departures by the Parramatta on Saturday were Capt. Langhouse, R.A., Commander E. D. Hunt, and Deputy Inspector General Bolster, of the Royal Naval Hospital, who are all bound for London.

A Notice to Mariners was published in the Gazette of Saturday that a further attempt would be made on the 23rd or 24th inst. to float the dredger Canton River. Operations, however, did not actually commence yesterday.

Hongkong cricketers will be pleased to hear that Mr. T. R. Hubbard, who distinguished himself much here in the past, has been appointed Superintendent of the Public Works Department, British North Borneo and Labuan.

The return of the Hon. J. H. Stewart Lockhart, C.M.G., to his duties as Colonial Secretary is notified in the Gazette, as is the resumption by the Hon. T. H. Whitehead of his position as Unofficial Member of the Legislative Council.

Messrs. Erich Georg & Co. say in their Weekly Share List, dated Hongkong, 22nd June:—There is little of interest to mention in our circular of this week, the plague having evidently acted in a depressing manner on business generally, and with the exception of a spurt in Lados, resulting in large lots changing hands, both on time and forward, sellers in most stocks rule the market.

William Klein and Charles Kniracher, two German youngsters, without employment, residing at the Star Coffee House, were taken to the Central Police Station last Saturday noon on the charge of stealing a pair of silk pyjamas from one Mr. Haley, a boarder at the same place. They claimed that the pyjamas were given to them by complainant amongst a lot of other clothing he gave them a few days ago. They were released after a short detention, as there was not sufficient evidence to secure a conviction. The inspector in charge justly concluding that possibly the pyjamas were amongst the clothing given to defendants without complainant being aware of it.

A meeting of the Legislative Council will be held to-morrow at 3 p.m.

To-night and to-morrow night, in Wellington Barracks, the R. E. Variety Club will give an entertainment, which is to conclude with a two-act sketch entitled Check Mate.

On Saturday the British transports Uta and Nemini reached Hongkong, the former from Taku, the latter from Odouita.

Four French transports leave Marseilles for Taku this week to take back part of the expeditionary force.

A collision occurred at Woosung on the 10th inst. between the steamer Skerryvore and the barge Collingrove, the former outward bound, the other inward. The Collingrove was seriously damaged in her bows. The Skerryvore was also damaged on her port side.

The N.C. Daily News of the 17th inst. says:—The Italian cruiser Stromboli which went aground in the river on the 9th inst. about half-a-mile below the Cosmopolitan Dock was towed off on Friday night but unfortunately grounded again. On Saturday morning, however, she was got off successfully, and is now anchored opposite the New Dock.

Judge Taft, President of the Civil Commission in the Philippines has now appointed Supreme Court and District Judges. Among the Supreme Court appointments are four Filipinos or mestizos and three Americans. Don Cayetano Arellano being the Chief Justice. Among the appointments for the District Judgeship are eleven Americans and six Filipinos. The highest salary paid to the District Judges is received by the Judge of Manila, viz., $5,500 per annum and the lowest to the District Judges of the Calamianes and Cayos Island group, viz., $3,000 per annum.

The following paragraph appears in the Corriere della Sera (Milan) of the 21st May:—"Mrs. Volpicelli, the wife of our Consul in Hongkong, was decorated with the large silver medal of the Red Cross for her charitable work in China. Mrs. Volpicelli was received by Queen Margaret, who paid her many compliments." Many of our readers will remember that Mrs. Volpicelli left in October last on the Italian transport Stegapore which took home 60 sick and wounded Italian sailors and soldiers, besides two wounded Austrian officers. The silver medal was given for her assiduous nursing and attendance on the patients during the long homeward journey.

Apparently great dissatisfaction is felt among the civil employees in the different government offices in Manila, by the order of the Civil Service Board that all civil employees must pass a civil service examination to prove their fitness to continue in the service. Most of the employees who have been in the same posts for several years, came over from the United States as volunteers to help their country to gain a foothold in the Philippines. While still soldiers they were detailed for duty in the various departments to assist in the re-organisation and to evolve order out of the chaos caused by the war, and after having been honourably discharged from the army continued in the service as civilians. They argue that the best criterion of their fitness to continue in the positions they hold is the efficiency with which they have discharged their duties hitherto.

With reference to the telegram in another column stating that General Cailles, one of the most notorious and irreconcilable insurgent leaders in the Philippines, will surrender to General Sumner, U. S. A., to-day at the Santa Cruz, the agreement to surrender, according to the Manila papers, was signed a week ago by Colonel Julian Infante, well known as a member of the "Hongkong Junta," on behalf of General Cailles. One of the stipulations was that he be given a week's time, to enable him to collect his forces, and choose a town in which to concentrate them. Both requests were granted by the American General, and last Wednesday saw the novel sight (the first time since the outbreak of the insurrection) of an American garrison giving place to an insurgent force. The town where this took place was Pagamanjan, from whence Cailles will march with his men to Santa Cruz, and surrender.

The Manila Times of the 18th inst. says: With the re-establishment of peace the desire to acquire an education which will in future years enable the Filipinos to attain their most cherished ideals is daily manifesting itself. El Comercio applauds the work of the Women's Peace League in giving practical shape to the idea of establishing an institution where Filipino women might improve their education and make themselves more influential in society and import their knowledge for the benefit of others. A long felt want has recently been supplied by the establishment of an educational institution where Filipino women are given facilities for improving their intellectual faculties and at the same time acquiring a knowledge that will be useful to them in their homes. The dissemination of broader views in the family circle will exert an influence which cannot be underestimated. The Women's Peace League has already given valuable assistance in the work of establishing peace in the islands through the powerful influence which it is able to bring to bear. As a continuation of its good work a more desirable and beneficial field for their laudable endeavours could not be found than that of education. By the establishment of the institution of learning referred to, the Women's Peace League has increased its sphere of usefulness and has doubly justified its existence. These philanthropic acts deserve every encouragement and support, and the members of the feminine league have again manifested that it is the fundamental desire of the society to work for the greatest good of their country and fellow-people.

An Indian boy named Solomon has also been discharged as cured.

At 10 a.m. an Indian, who was recently picked up in an unconscious condition, died on Friday night.

POLICE PROMENADE CONCERT.

Last Saturday proved a red-letter day for the Hongkong police force, as, for the first time in the history of the Colony, the doughty defenders of the law proved that they could also be equally good as entertainers. The occasion was a promenade concert given by the force. First attempts of this nature usually require that a great deal of allowance be made on the score of its being the "first time"; last Saturday's concert, however, required no such indulgence.

The parade-ground looked like a Midsummer Night's Dream with its myriads of Chinese lanterns and flags, the impromptu stage was tastefully decorated with flags of all nations; and the whole combined gave an exceedingly pretty effect.

The musical bill of fare was large and varied, and also of the best quality. Not the least of the pleasant features (to some possibly the most pleasant) was the bar, at which drinks of all kinds were dispensed ad libitum and free, and if patronage is any criterion to appreciation, that particular generosity on the part of the genial hosts was certainly appreciated. There was no hitch during the whole proceedings, the only mistake being made by the weather clerk, who caused a shower to drive the audience under shelter just before half of the programme had been gone through.

The entertainment opened with an overture by the band of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, followed by the song, "Fiona" by Mr. George, who with his magnificent voice at once became a favourite. A baritone solo by Mr. Parker was well received, as was Mrs. Whitehouse's perfect rendering of "The Amorous Goldfish," and the "Gates of the West." Hongkong's great amateur comedian, Mr. Viggers, gave "Then I understood," and "A Hunting" as an encore, and in the second part, the parody on "Tell me, Mother Darling" with "Poor Thing" as an encore. Needless to say, his songs raised storms of applause. Two instrumental trios—piano, Miss Parker; violin, Messrs. Stringer and Doring—were very well executed. Miss Parker's performance on the piano deserves special mention, as she certainly is an exceptionally talented player. Mrs. Stringer being ill, Sergeant French, R.A., sang "Queen of the World" and "Mona" as an encore. Both songs were well rendered and appreciated. Mrs. Brands was heard to advantage in "The Old Country" and a "Selection." She has a sweet voice, which somewhat suffered by the performance being in the open air. Mr. Richardson as the "Irish Masher" in a song and dance, and again in a clog dance, was very good. Mr. Burgess rendered the patriotic and popular song "What do you think of the Irish now?" exceptionally well, and gave as an encore "In the Middle of the Road," a comic song, and in the second part the "White-wash Party." Messrs. French and Doring's duet was well rendered and deservedly appreciated. It was midnight ere "God Save the King" was reached.

The entertainment proved a grand success in every way, and did great credit to the Committee, composed of Messrs. George, Lander, Bapil, Kerr, Pitt, McSwayed, Devney, Eakin, Brown, Grant (Hon. Treas.), Withers (Hon. Sec.) and Inspector Hansen (Chairman).

THE PLAGUE: A REMEDY FROM BOMBAY.

33rd June.
TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."
SIR,—You must little have thought, when publishing on the 21st inst. my first letter on this subject, what a floppy response your journalistic hospitality in the cause of the public weal was going to meet with on the arrival of the English Mail on the same day, which brought Bombay papers, including the Bombay Gazette of the 31st inst., which contains a very interesting and instructive letter from the pen of Professor Gajjar, M.A., B.Sc., the Hindu scientist referred to in my first letter in your paper. It is earnestly to be hoped that this important letter by a scientist who is devoting his time, attention, energy, and money to the investigation and discovery of a panacea against this scourge of scourges, the plague, will not be allowed to go unheeded by the local authorities and the medical profession of the colony, but that full advantage will be taken of the figures and deductions of the author of the letter in question. Dr. Bahadurji, I may state, is the Parsee London M.D., B.Sc., referred to in my first letter.—Yours, etc.,
A BOMBAYITE.

(Enclosure)
"IODINE PERCHLORIDE AND PLACU."

"TO THE EDITOR OF THE BOMBAY GAZETTE."
Bombay, 31st May.
SIR,—I submit the statement for the month of April last of the Balaio and other Fever cases treated with Iodine Perchloride at the undermentioned free stations opened by Sheth Naranji Dwarikdas.

[The statement shows that in the month of April, 81 cases with buboes and 493 cases without buboes (in all, 574 cases) were treated with the above mentioned medicine, out of which 69 patients with buboes and 493 patients without buboes (in all, 562 patients) recovered, and 21 patients with buboes and 31 without buboes died, which gives a proportion of 74.07 per cent. of recoveries of cases with buboes and 93.3 per cent. of recoveries of cases without buboes.]

"During the last 3 months—the epidemic season—in all 1414 patients were treated at the free Stations with Iodine Perchloride, out of whom 1,267 recovered and 147 died. True it is that in the great majority of these cases it is impossible to determine with precision the exact number of cases in which the medicine was used at the same time; but it is remembered that almost all the cases treated had come from localities where plague was most rife, or had been in contact with plague patients. This fact alone will force the public to the irresistible conclusion that the number of plague cases placed under the heading 'with buboes,' with a view to dissipate all doubts, is very much short of the actual one. Be that as it may, there will be no denying the fact that the results, even as they are shown above, are eminently satisfactory. The germicide in question has now unquestionably established its value by giving a much reduced death-rate in plague epidemics."

"Another factor in connection with the above statement, which goes a great way to enhance the value of this germicide, is that almost all the patients that received the treatment were from among the low caste people, who are notorious for their susceptibility to plague and such kindred diseases on account of their scandalously filthy habits and living. The regular administration of the medicine and proper nursing, moreover, could not be expected from these ignorant and illiterate persons. In spite of all these adverse circumstances, the action of the germicide in question was marked and quick in lowering the temperature and crippling the further development of the disease, and thus hastening the recovery of those who availed themselves of it in time. I would, on the strength of this successful trial, fairly extensive, commend this Iodine Perchloride to the notice of those who are interested in the vexed problem of saving the unfortunate and helpless victims to this fell disease, and entreat them one and all to try this germicide in good earnest in all diseases of septic origin. There was no doubt, the disposition to cry down this potent curative to the level of much advertised so-called patent medicines; but now happily the sign of correct understanding is distinctly observable, and I have no doubt that, ere long, all doubts and scruples regarding its use would vanish. I have reasons to hope that medical men would not look upon this Iodine Perchloride—which is nothing but a well known and stable chemical compound—as in any way a strange drug of unknown and unreliable composition, but would hail it as the true non-poisonous germicide, of which they were in some need, and which they were in some measure justified in all their prejudices, would accept this germicide with a satisfying sense of relief, giving up the harmful use either of depressant, diaphoretic and antipyretic remedies, or stimulants such as strychnine, atropine, &c., in poisonous doses."

"Before bringing these few remarks to a close, I embrace this opportunity of publicly expressing my gratitude to my lamented friend Dr. Bahadurji, whose encouragement at the initial stage of the trial was quite an incentive to me for further progress. Another gentleman who most rightly claims my gratitude and that of the public at large is that unostentatious Sheth Naranji Dwarikdas, whose keen sympathy for suffering humanity and enlightened interest in the solutions of the great scientific problems of the day led him to voluntarily place at my disposal sufficient funds to carry on my investigations in this direction and to give the benefit of the germicidal treatment to the poor. It will not be too much to say that the present accomplishment would not have been possible without his assistance. Allow me therefore to publicly acknowledge with heartfelt gratitude, on behalf of myself and that of the public, the invaluable help rendered by him. I must also thank those medical men and others who kindly assisted me with more or less energy and interest in the trial.—Yours, &c.,
"J. K. GAJJAR."

ROAD-MAKING IN HONGKONG.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."
SIR,—May I take the liberty to use your valuable columns to draw the attention of the powers that be to the disgracefully slow way they have in this colony of repairing roads? Queen's Road East has been under repair for some time, and in the last ten days not more than 600 yards were finished, and that was very poorly done. Did this road-repairing not interfere with the traffic and the comfort of the colony's taxpayers, it would matter little, but the mode of work in vogue here seriously interferes with the traffic. Anyone wishing to go East beyond Arsenal Street has to make a detour along the Praya, as it is impossible for either horse or man, without cruelty to either, to pull a vehicle over the 300 yards of rocks and gravel put down by the coolies, but not crushed into the ground and levelled by the steam-roller. Apparently the coolies put down more stones than the steam-roller is able to crush down during the day, and hence the portion of road impassable becomes longer daily.

Why should this be so? Either the officials in charge of the work are incompetent, or criminally neglectful of the public's comfort and money. In either case they ought to be dismissed, and the right men put in their place. Roads repaired at the rate of speed that Queen's Road East is being repaired at, and even then poorly done, must certainly cost an enormous amount of money, far more than any taxpayer in all Hongkong can be asked to pay.

If the Government does not possess men competent to repair the roads well and quickly, with the least possible expenditure of time and money, let them send some of their amateur road builders to Shanghai, the "Model Settlement" and learn there how it is done.

Thanking you in anticipation—Your, etc.,
A FRIEND OF THE TAXPAYER

POLICE COURT.

Saturday 22nd June.

BEFORE MR. HAZELAND.

IN INSOLVENT CHINESE SERVANT.

Mr. E. M. Bishop, of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, charged one Li To Nam, servant of one of the clerks at the bank, with using indecent and threatening language towards him.

Complainant stated that last Wednesday evening, he and three others were engaged in a game of bowls on the lawn opposite the Bank, when one of them called for four drinks. The drinks not appearing, he went up-stairs to the wine-boy and asked him why he had not brought down the drinks ordered. He said he had not time, but had told defendant to do so. When he (complainant) asked defendant why he had not brought down the drinks, the latter flew at him, and said, "This is no my work, I go like this work." Defendant told him to tell that to his master. Defendant thereupon said, "I take this time, but I do not again." He then went upstairs to put on his coat, shouting all the time, Defendant said, "I don't fear you, you touch me, I go police." Complainant went out on the lawn again, and a little while after defendant followed with the drinks, and started to taunt complainant, repeating several times, "I no fear you, you touch me, I go police." Complainant having told him to go away, at last he went, using a grossly abusive expression.

His Worship at this stage asked complainant if it was the practice at the junior mess of the bank, that the boy of any clerk when he went on duty was supposed to do whatever told by any member of the mess.

Complainant answered in the affirmative. Witnesses were then called, after which His Worship summed up, and said that it was conclusively proved that defendant had made use of indecent and threatening language, and that it was absolutely necessary to make an example of him, to show Hongkong servants that they could not with impunity insult and abuse their masters.

Defendant was to pay a fine of $15 or to do three weeks' hard labour.

BEFORE MR. KEMP.

ATTEMPTING TO CIRCULATE COUNTERFEIT COIN.

A Chinese was charged by Detective Sergeant Terrett with attempting to circulate counterfeit ten-cent and five-cent pieces.

The defendant when arrested had still six copper ten-cent and one copper five-cent pieces in his possession.

His Worship fined him $3 for each piece of counterfeit money found on his person, a total of $21.

TURBULENT JAPANESE LOAFERS.
Inspector Collett prosecuted three Japanese loafers, Ship Street runners, with disorderly behaviour and assault.

It appears that three Chinese amahs, were out at the same time with three children under their charge, when the three accused passed by, the first one striking Inspector Collett's little two-and-a-half year old daughter with a stick. Amah Mak Sze told him she should not do so, whereupon he gave her a blow with the stick upon her back. When Mok Ut, the Inspector Collett's amah remonstrated with him, he assaulted her indecently and threw her on her face. She got up, ran to the police station, and reported the matter.

The Inspector and some constables went out after the culprits to arrest them. The latter resisted the officers, especially first defendant, and it was only after a hard struggle that the officers managed to put the accused under lock and key.

His Worship fined first defendant $10 for disorderly conduct, and $5 for assault, second defendant $5 for disorderly conduct, and third defendant $3 on same charge.

WEIHAIWEI.

Weihaiwei, 10th June.

THE LAUNCH SERVICE.
So long maintained partly by private effort and subsidised by Government, has ceased to exist. The proprietor threatened to withdraw his boat when a proposal was made to reduce the subsidy and to limit the number of passengers. He has made good that threat. Government for their own convenience run a launch twice daily, but so far as the convenience of private residents and visitors to this health resort is concerned, the last state of the place is worse than the first. The inconvenience becomes a hardship to private individuals living on the mainland.

Eventually the seat of colonial government will certainly be in Mahto, to the north of the harbour. At present the commissioner's residence and the naval and military headquarters are all on Likiepung. The cable of the Eastern Extension Telegraph Company also lands on the island. The steamship companies have their offices there. The dweller in Mahto requires the best part of a day, if he wishes to make sure of the meeting some passing vessel. Our local news sheet, The Weihaiwei Gazette, reaches subscribers on the other side of the water as a rule, 24 hours after issue on the island. When it is stated that there is not even a cable connecting the island and mainland, the isolation of the civilian living on the latter can be realised. From whatever point the question is viewed the lapse of steam communication across the harbour for those willing to pay a reasonable charge is distinctly a retrograde step in the general development of a port, which, considering its very great natural advantages, should, with a little nursing, grow into the most important maritime and sea-side resort of North China.

Capital invested in land and in buildings erected in excellent situations for the convenience of visitors coming here for the summer months, has hitherto secured very little interest. The crisis in the North prevented an influx of visitors last season. This year there is no such obstacle. Surely—if no other reason exists—the prospect of a possible increase of revenue from a colony that is anything but self-supporting should lead to some special effort being made to create easy communication and increase the general attractiveness of the port.

THE STEAMER COMPANIES.
But if we have gone from bad to worse as regards means of communication between important parts of the colony, the situation as regards our intercourse with the treaty ports is still more serious. Almost daily steamers flying the British flag pass within eight of this harbour, but leave us severely alone. The companies ask as subsidy a sum that on the face of it seems absurd—$300 for each ship calling here! It should be borne in mind that a steamer need only turn a few miles from her course, and if passing through with passengers and mails only for the port, and then return to an anchor. As it is, the cargo brought here in the ordinary course of business is sufficient for a steamer from Shanghai to call on the average once a week. But there are no exports, and therefore there is little, if any inducement for steamers to come in on their way to Shanghai. It is the accepted policy of the British Government to leave as much as possible to private enterprise, and to avoid the molesting up of industries by subsidies. Apart from this, owing to our entanglement in South Africa, funds generally available for the improvement of distant ports and stations are scarce. Nevertheless the authorities are prepared to subsidise to some extent, but the long-standing difference with companies trading under the protection of the British flag, as to the exact amount of subsidy, is no nearer settlement. Rather than submit to coercion, the expensive and unsatisfactory expedient of sending a gunboat to Chi-foo to fetch the mails is very frequently adopted. The cost in coal alone for each trip of a boat, as small even as H.M.S. Britomart, cannot be much less than $150. It is understood that a local firm has offered to run a launch twice a week for a subsidy of $800 per month. The offer does not appear to have had a favourable reception. I have it on reliable authority that negotiations have been opened with a Japanese firm, and it is not unlikely that we shall have the trade of the new English colony pass into the hands of outsiders satisfied with a smaller subsidy. We may accept as one of the principles governing commercial life both of private individuals and of corporations, that where Government contracts are concerned the profits should be well above the average. But in this particular case we may well ask, where capital and patriotism come in. By their persistent endeavour to coerce Government into offering a subsidy altogether out of proportion to the service rendered, it almost looks as if the British steamer companies will allow business of much potential value to pass out of their hands altogether.—N.C. Daily News.

The following story is from a Tokio paper: Nagoya abounds in udon (macaroni) shops as Tokio in soba (buckwheat macaroni) shops, probably because a better quality of wheat flour is produced in the vicinity of Nagoya and this enables the Nagoya man to make savoury macaroni. We are now told that all those several hundred macaroni shops have become almost deserted by their customers, in consequence of a strange rumour to the effect that owing to the recent advance in the price of dried bonito, used for giving seasoning to the macaroni, the dealers use dried snake as a substitute. This is scarcely credible, but we are told that the truth of it has been established in at least one case. A certain macaroni shop got about a month ago a consignment of 20 to 40 tin cans from Formosa. The cans were old petroleum cans, and the forwarding agent thought it curious that such a consignment should reach a macaroni shop. One can happened to be much battered, and on carefully examining the inside he saw it filled to the astonishment, so the story goes, with dried pieces of sooty snakes chopped to the length of 3 to 4 inches. The story quickly spread from neighbour to neighbour, till at last it had gone through the whole town. And so all the macaroni shops once crowded with customers are now completely deserted.

CUBA AND CHINESE EXCLUSION.

A Washington telegram, of the 22nd inst. says—

Steps have been taken by the Treasury Department to have the War Department extend to Cuba the Chinese Exclusion Act, just as the United States immigration regulations were extended to the island on June 6, 1898. The officials have become alarmed at the rapidly increasing number of Chinese coming through the country in bond from Pacific Coast ports and passing likewise from Canada through the States, with Cuba as their destination. Thousands have embarked from New Orleans and New York city for Havana in the last few months, and once in Cuba there is little to prevent their being smuggled into Florida. The Florida coast is not patrolled, and the customs or immigration force large enough in that State to deal with this new condition.

From Plattsburg, N. Y., for the week ending May 4th, 111 Chinese passed through the State via New York city, for Havana, with no other purpose, the officials claim, than to thus evade the exclusion act and return to the States through Florida and by the South Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Immigration Inspector Wright at New Orleans has called the attention of Commissioner-General of Immigration Fordwiler to the condition at that port in a letter of May 20th, saying: "I have the honor to call attention to the increased number of Chinese passing through this port in transit from China, via San Francisco, for Havana. There are now fifty-five here who arrived on the night of the 18th, and who will leave for Havana about the 23rd or 24th. I fear their intentions are bona fide, and that they have some way or ways by which they will reach the United States clandestinely after their arrival in Havana."

Wright states that from the 14th to the 18th of May 97 Chinese passed through New Orleans for Havana. The steamship companies give bond for their transit through the country. They are taking steps in the Orient, the officials say, to rush large numbers of Chinese through the United States to Cuba before the exclusion act regulations are extended to the island. Commissioner-General Fordwiler, with whom lies also the duty of enforcing the exclusion act since last spring, has no officers for this purpose now in Cuba. Immigration regulations there are enforced by the War Department.

THE LABOUR QUESTION IN HAWAII.

An U. S. official report contains a statement by Professor Stubbs on the labour question on the Hawaii plantations, which is reproduced in the Honolulu papers. Some remarks on Chinese immigration may be quoted:—

There has never existed any treaty or labour convention between the Government of Hawaii and the Empire of China. In early days a limited number of Chinese settled in the islands, intermarried with the natives, and by their industry and economy were generally prosperous. About 750 of them were naturalised under the monarchy. The first importation of Chinese labourers into the country took place in 1852. In 1878 the number of Chinese had risen to 5,916. During the next few years there was a steady influx of Chinese free immigrants, which finally reached alarming proportions. In the spring of 1881 the Hawaiian Government was obliged to send a dispatch to the Governor of Hongkong to stop this invasion. Again, in April, 1883, it was suddenly renewed, and within twenty days five steamers arrived from Hongkong, bringing 2,533 Chinese passengers, followed the next month by 1,400 more, with the news that several thousand more were ready to embark. Accordingly, the Hawaiian Government sent another dispatch to the Governor of Hongkong refusing to admit any further immigration of male Chinese from that port.

Various regulations restricting Chinese immigration were enacted from time to time, until in 1886 the landing of any Chinese passenger without a passport was prohibited. The number of Chinese in the islands had risen to 21,000, and in 1890 it is estimated to be about 27,000, of whom about 6,500 are employed on sugar plantations. They have reclaimed many useless swamps for the cultivation of rice. Many of them are shopkeepers, market gardeners, laundries and fishermen. They have been truly described as industrious, persevering, frugal, peaceable, and law abiding. Their mercantile credit stands as high as that of any other nationality.

The effect of annexation to the United States will be to put an end to all assisted immigration of labourers, and to exclude all Chinese labourers. But under the recent treaty between the United States and Japan, there is nothing to limit the free immigration of Japanese, and several companies have been formed to promote it.

The decrease of the aboriginal population has still continued, from 44,88 in 1878 to 40,114 in 1884, 34,426 in 1890 and 31,019 in 1896, the rate of decrease being about 1.5 per cent a year. At the same time the part Hawaiians, the offspring of intermarriages between Hawaiian women and men of other races, has constantly been increasing from 3,420 in 1878 to 4,218 in 1884, 6,138 in 1890, and 8,485 in 1896. All these facts point to the gradual extinction of the full-blooded Hawaiians, and the absorption of the remnant of the race by the European and Asiatic population.

SHEARNEL IN THE WAR.

A very serious defect in the pattern of the shrapnel—a defect which we do not remember to have seen noticed before in any of the many criticisms of our artillery with which we have been favoured since the present war began—is alleged to exist by a German officer, who served for many months in the Boer forces both in the Orange Free State and in Natal. The ideal shrapnel, it may be explained, should be merely a case containing bullets and a small bursting charge. The explosion of this latter should break up the envelope into small splinters at the distance from the gun for which the fuse is set. The bullets, thus set free, will then continue their flight, at first with the velocity of the shell at the moment of bursting; but being acted upon by the centrifugal force generated by the rotation of the projectile in which they were carried, they do not go forward in a mass, but extend into a cone, known by artillerymen as "the cone of dispersion." The resistance of the air causes them quickly to lose their velocity; the force of gravity draws them earthwards, so that a shower of bullets falls upon a rectangle of ground some 300-350 yards in length and 10-30 yards wide in front of the spot where the shell burst, the length of this "heaven cone" depending naturally upon the velocity of the shell at the moment of bursting, or in other words upon the range.

From the statements, however, of the German officer referred to above, which are printed in an article by him on the English Artillery in South Africa in the latest number of the Militär Wochenblatt it seems that the shell or containing envelope of the shrapnel of the English field batteries did not thus break up on the explosion, but that the bursting charge burst, the length of this "heaven cone" depending naturally upon the velocity of the shell at the moment of bursting, or in other words upon the range.

Perhaps the most striking of the incidents which the German officer relates in support of his statement occurred during the fighting at Spion Kop, on the 24th of January, 1900. The narrator had been sent forward with thirty Boers to reconnoitre the British position. Suddenly the party came under the fire of a field battery in the Tugela valley, which opened upon them with shrapnel. The first shell went over their heads, and before the English gunners could get the range, the German officer with his men succeeded in reaching a run-alow wall, only some 25 feet high, behind which they threw themselves prostrate. Very quickly the battery found the range, but nevertheless the Boers lay prone behind the low cover they had reached for more than an hour, under a continuous fire, with a loss of only one man killed and two slightly wounded. So far as action was concerned, the shell burst admirably, but the envelope failing to break up the bullets came out in a mass, struck the wall, and fell harmlessly to the ground. Going over the scene of action next day, the German officer saw numbers of the shrapnel lying about, but not one of them had burst properly. If this narrative is true, the small amount of damage wrought on many occasions by our artillery can be easily understood.

For the rest it is satisfactory to find that the writer speaks highly of the skill and technical training of the English artillerymen. That our batteries failed to achieve more decisive results he ascribes to the above-described faultiness in the pattern of the shrapnel, and in part to the peculiar formation of the ground, combined with the refusal of the Boers ever to adventure themselves in the open.

RELICS OF MARY QUEEN OF SCOTS.

In his thrilling account of the execution of Mary Queen of Scots, Froide tells how the English authorities at Fotheringhay took care to burn all the articles which she had worn, in order that no relics should be carried off to work imaginary miracles. "Beads, paternoster, handkerchief, each particle of dress which the blood had touched with the cloth of the block and on the scaffold, was burnt in the half fire in the presence of the crowd." Apparently, however, some articles escaped the notice either of the authorities or the historian, or else a most notable miracle has been wrought not only by the relics, but upon them, in spite of the precautions by Sir Amyas Paulet and the Earls of Kent and Shrewsbury, there is no lack of relics of the "martyrdom" of Queen Mary. The Howards, for example, are said to preserve the beads which Froide describes as having been destroyed, and if we are to believe the author of a recently published Spanish pamphlet, the crucifix is at present in the possession of the Queen-Regent of Spain. This crucifix—a gold one—plays a foremost part in the tragedy of Fotheringhay. It hung from the Queen's neck when she entered the fatal hall, and it was over it, in the remorseless words of Froide, that she prayed "for the Church which she had been ready to betray, for her son whom she had disinherited, for the Queen whom she had endeavoured to murder," and that she also forgave her enemies, whom she had invited Philip not to forget. According to the same authority, the crucifixion, just before doing his office, seized the sacred jewel as a perquisite, but "was justly ordered to lay it down." The Spanish pamphlet, however, will have it that the crucifix was given by the Queen to Jane Kennedy, one of the women who attended her on the scaffold, and that from her it passed to the Royal Family of France, and was carried into Spain by Elizabeth, daughter of Henry IV., on her marriage with the Spanish King, Philip IV., in 1616. She gave it to the Countess of Estante, who left it to a convent in Valladolid, by which it was presented to the bride of the late Alfonso XII. "This, of course, is a very goodly and honourable pedigree, and fanatical Catholics will ask nothing more to confirm their belief in the genuineness of the relic. Yet, although it must be vastly comforting to think that the crucifix was saved alike from the executioner and from the bonfire, the circumstances of its present custody cannot be viewed by any true Jacobite without regret. The reigning family in Spain, according to Legitimist almanacs is after all a race of usurpers little better than the Sarracens in Iberia or the Mohammedans in Great Britain. To suppose that the crucifix could ever be in the hands of Mary III. and IV. in Bavaria.

OUR PARIS LETTER.

Paris, 25th May.

The anniversary of the death of the Commune, May, 1871, which has now lapsed into an anarchist-socialist fête, passed off in a drawing-room manner. Formerly it gave quiet citizens the fits. Now it is a quiet promenade to the Pere Lachaise Cemetery; the manifestos being unable to display a red flag, fell back on red cotton handkerchiefs, while the weaker cox wore red roses in their corsage, and blood-red Phrygian caps for head-gear, with orange-scarlet immortelles. There was neither oration nor peroration, the police not allowing anyone to make a stay.

The American Coal Trust is taken very seriously in France, and is accepted as having come to stay. A special colliery fleet is to be provided, and Congress is expected to vote the necessary bounty, so that the out-put of the Philadelphia mines can be as cheaply dumped down in this country as Welsh coals. That will not displease the French. American coal is inferior to the product from Wales, but it will be cheaper. The English coal-owners will have to combine for self-protection, and are expected to be already so occupied. In all cases it will bring the economic crisis to a head.
How long will England continue to fight the honey-fed commerce and trade of rival Governments without any retaliation, or the adopting of measures of self-defence?

The statement that leprosy is on the increase in France and that there are no less than fourteen hundred cases in the St. Louis Hospital of this city, has come as a great shock. This institution was originally a leprosy hospital, but since twenty years the plague has been stamped out. History reveals terrible doings by the savage in former years throughout France.
At present the ravages caused by cancer are startling enough: as many as fifty deaths a week are reported from the loathsome disease in the capital alone, without the presence of its disgusting near relative. Doctors assert that leprosy is certainly gaining ground in both the Alps and Brittany. The afflicted should be isolated, and so treated. The question is now asked:—Could the scourge have been imported from Hawaii, in the same way as the bubonic contagion was from Bombay? It is said that in the American colony the sufferers are not regarded as curable, but are made as comfortable as possible until death arrives. Here the doctors can cure leprosy, if not too far advanced. In any case it is a very contagious disease, and the greatest precautions are necessary.

Artists do not appear to be a happy family.
Every artist who can use a brush with ordinary talent is free to pass in his production to the examiners for admission to the annual picture show or Salon. Roughly speaking, out of 7,000 sent in to be examined, 5,000 were rejected.
That was a large number of rejections, or discontented. They plucked up heart of grace, and formed themselves into a syndicate, secured premises, and opened a Salon of their own. But fate followed them from among their own body also displayed the Old Adam by condemning many of the exhibits—for all were free to show who chose to do so—as not being worthy of any compliment. The consequence was that the nominated and unjust judges have had to run for their lives, they were abused and calumniated until not as much as a clean spot in their character was visible; the lady-artists proved the most irritated of the indignant.
No hugh however are recorded up to the present.

The Tribunal has just decided that a telephone message or order holds good, until its reception is cancelled. M. Deichon, an architect, on the occasion of his marriage, ordered carriages for all his guests to haste to the wedding. The job-master took no notice of the order, at a time too when it was necessary to annihilate time and space, and make at least two lovers happy.
No carriage came; because he did not receive a repeat message, so declined to act. He had to pay damages and costs, while cabs conveyed the bridal party.

M. de Lar Saluces is the only remaining card which the Orleansists possess, or have to throw against the Government. He ran away, so escaped being tried before the late High Court of Justice for treason-conspiracy. He is wealthy, and having been declared an outlaw, his estates and other property have been confiscated. He has now returned to town, and defies the authorities to arrest him. He will likely be conducted back unconsciously to the frontier, where he will have the world before him from where to choose an abode.
The public takes no interest in him, and no one will now pardon the bold outlaw.

M. Legrix has taken the anti-smoking crusade under his wing; though on this occasion he devotes his thunder-lightning, and big adjectives to the ladies, who have so audaciously addicted themselves to cigarettes. He has discovered that the five o'clock tea institution is simply a pretext to meet, smoke, and gossip.
He is much surprised that ladies have no special smoking toilettes; perhaps we are within measurable distance of that as well. M. Legrix finds that cigarettes make rapid proselytes.
Literary ladies whiff, and the boulevard has also its provision of weed that would shake the saint-ship of an anchorite. There are a few well-known ladies who patronise the "church-warden" and others whose weakness is for a moorselam. As yet, they do not openly, at least, patronise cigars. Towards the end of the Second Empire, M. Decroix, an old veterinary surgeon, devoted the one-half of his pension to the founding of a society against the use of tobacco; he published leaflets, and gave lectures. He has just died, and there is great weeping in Israel. He experienced one great shock in life, the spectacle of a lady-teacher in the act of smoking before her pupils in the class-room.

The police made a sweep through the Bois de Vincennes a few nights ago, in order to clear out undesirables. They succeeded in arresting fifteen vagabonds and five women. One of the men was Vicomte de St. Ruth, aged 40, who had been reduced to complete misery, after squandering his large fortune in vice. Though the Vincennes Forest is a charming spot where to enjoy a picnic it is not safe after dark.

Although a native of Bordeaux, her father being an artist of reputation, and her mother a celebrated teacher of music, Rosa Bonheur passed her life in her solitary little chateau, or mansion, at By in the forest of Fontainebleau, the region in a word sacred to artists. She studied painting under her father, and on his death came to Paris to study, and to obtain a livelihood. At the cost of much suffering and misery, she achieved success. To commemorate her residence at By, a memorial bust was erected to her at Fontainebleau. The donor was the English picture-dealer, Mr. Gambart, an enthusiastic admirer of her talent. The inaugural ceremony has just taken place, amidst great local rejoicings. The bust recalls somewhat a combination of the clergyman and the soldier, the former especially: there is a strong masculine expression in the features, and energetic resolution. Her three greatest works
"Le Labourage Nivernais," "Le Marche aux Chevaux," and "La Fenaison," were produced in 1850, 1853, and 1855, when she was between 28 and 33 years of age—in her prime. Her works have been more admired abroad, especially by the English, than in France. She had three brothers and one sister; only one brother, a sculptor, survives.

Le Figaro has fallen on evil days and is in great trouble with a contemporary, Le Matin.
The Figaro once held a very powerful and enviable position; it had a large circulation, and its subscribers were the wealthiest in the country. The Dreyfus scandal arrived. Le Figaro supported the martyr of L'Et du Diable, or Devil's Isle. That was rank blasphemy in the eyes of the nobility, of the wealthy, as well as of the army. Subscribers fell away in thousands, and the paper never had a hold on the masses.
The 19,001 shares which were quoted, as if bank-notes, at 1,550 francs, dropped down to 497 francs. The Dreyfus Editor was requested not to write on the subject for one year. A hot anti-Dreyfusard now followed up the scandal, but he was unable to whistle back the legions, the large circulation, and the advertisement.
The suspended editor's twelve months' silence having expired, by effluxion of time, he has returned, and supports Dreyfus. The Matin accuses Le Figaro of having been bought by a German Trust. Denial and scandal. The chief editors have been removed, and they are to have a few duels, and a law-suit with the administration. Pieces of the Figaro are worth picking up.

The French, like the other Allies, are waiting for something to turn up in China. They are surprised at the vast quantities of up-to-date guns, rifles and ammunition that have been looted from the Chinese, which would have been terrible in the results had the Chinese been properly trained in how to use them. No one has found out a solution for the payment of the indemnity, and territory-snatching is not to be thought of. It is accepted as a certainty that neither Empress nor Emperor will return to Peking, and that the Allies' occupation will not be largely diminished in that capital.

Respecting the South African War, the belief is more general that the stamping-out of the guerilla obstruction will continue a long time. It is of no use to the Boer cause, but only increases the bill of costs.
